Australia:

- In a previous segment Adelaide was used as an example.
- Perth; The capital in the south of Western Australia.
- Population of 922,000 in the greater city.
- Fremantle; A part of metropolitan Perth. It is the chief port in western Australia and has the ship yard facilities and iron foundries.
- Population 22,7900
- Both cities have been considered as one for this study
- The country has a federal budget of $73 billion in revenue and $66 billion in expenditure. The government is stable and conservative.
- The waves in the southern section are in the very high range which allows for maximum production of potable water and other OMI products.
